“The Good I’ve Found”
By Jessica Karpilo, Outreach Associate

Dorothy Bell, who has, at times, been both an Island Senior Resources’ volunteer and client, is no stranger to interviews. You may remember reading about when she jumped out of an airplane at 81, the class of students she knits hats for every year, or her joyful, curious approach to life that we can all learn from. So, when she tried to think of a way to thank her entire community for rallying around her in her time of need, sharing her story in the paper just made sense.

One year ago, Dorothy was in a car accident. She woke up in the hospital and discovered that, among other bumps, bruises, and breaks, her foot needed to be entirely rebuilt. Relieved and grateful to be alive, but with a long road to recovery ahead of her, the hospital, then a rehab center, would be her home for several months.

Meanwhile, everyone in the world was adjusting to life with COVID-19, practicing new habits, and, in many cases, dealing with loss of jobs, loss of life, and loss of any sense of normalcy. But, as we all have seen, none of this could stop us from caring for each other and our communities.

It is often when things seem the worst that people show up for us in unexpected ways; Dorothy will attest to this because Dorothy’s people showed up.

Her neighbors and friends did everything they could to make sure that Dorothy could come home. The Lions Club built a wheelchair ramp, friends reorganized her entire home, even removing the interior doors so that she could navigate with her wheelchair. Others made food and froze it in small containers, ensuring that she would have plenty of meals waiting for her. Neighbors and friends maintained her garden, which she, a master gardener, refers to as her “treasure” and what keeps her going. Someone from the Navy base even came down to trim her fruit trees.

Because of all of this, Dorothy was able to come home last July.

Aging Mastery Program – Take the Steps Today Toward Positive Aging
By Carly Larson
Program Coordinator, City of Oak Harbor Senior Services

The Center In Oak Harbor is proud to partner with the National Council on Aging to offer you the Aging Mastery Starter Kit. The Starter Kit will inspire you to take steps toward positive again across six dimensions and help you build your own playbook for aging well. Each dimension has specific guideposts, or actions, that you are encouraged to incorporate in your daily life. Each week will have a RingCentral (Powered by Zoom) meeting with the group and a guest speaker to discuss the chapter and apply what we have learned. You can join the meeting by either calling in or using a device to connect to the video chat. This is a great time to make new connections, engage in lifelong learning, and start to master aging well.

How the Month of February and Haiku’s are Alike

By Carly Larson
Program Coordinator, City of Oak Harbor Senior Services

Did you know February is national Haiku month? I didn’t, but after learning it is, I felt like it made sense because February is the shortest month and Haiku’s are one of the shortest forms of poetry. Haiku’s are typically short, three-line poems that follow a 5-7-5 syllable pattern and usually don’t rhyme, however, there are different varieties and variations. Haiku’s originate from the Japanese culture, and it is said they can be tracked as far back as the 9th century. They are also viewed as more than just a poem, but also a way to look at nature around you and see something deeper. They are meant to inspire and leave a strong impression. The Haiku poem written by Matsuo Basho, “The Old Pond” has always left an impression on me. It reminds me that sometimes what seems to be still, old, and nothing anymore still has life and makes a splash.

You can write your own Haiku poem following the traditional format:

- Line 1 – 5 syllables
- Line 2 – 7 syllables
- Line 3 – 5 syllables

If you wish to share your Haiku please submit it to Carly Larson by email at clarson@oakharbor.org or by phone at 360-279-4583 or by mail: The Center In Oak Harbor, Attention: Carly Larson, 51 SE Jerome Street, Oak Harbor WA 98277.

Remember that just because a Haiku is short like the month of February doesn’t mean it can’t make a large impact. Happy February and national Haiku month!
CLASSES and EVENTS at The Center in Oak Harbor

BRUNCH BOXES AT THE CENTER IN OAK HARBOR

Deadline is February 5. Payment for the brunch box is due by February 11.

SINGLE MINGLE Friday, Feb. 12 • 3 p.m.

$5 for center members
$10 for non-members

This year’s Single Mingle is going virtual! If you are single and looking to spark up some new conversations, this is for you. This will be a great opportunity to meet new people in a very comfortable setting, without leaving your home. Singles from Whidbey Island, Anacortes and surrounding areas are being invited to join. Center staff will have conversation starters and will facilitate the event by virtually placing participants into “breakout groups” and then rotating participants throughout the event. Must pre-register by Thursday, Feb. 11.

If you would like to participate and are new to using a virtual platform like Zoom or RingCentral, we would be happy to schedule a time to introduce you to the platform prior to the event. Please contact staff at 360-279-4580 to schedule a virtual intro to RingCentral. If your computer does not have a camera or microphone, please call to check one out for the event.

Ways to Move More:

- Schedule a daily phone call with a friend or loved one and go for a walk around the neighborhood while you chat.
- Clean the house or organize the closet.
- Instead of sitting on the couch, stretch, or exercise while you watch your favorite shows.
- Play like a kid—jump in the pile of leaves you just raked or splash through a puddle.
- Exercise along with a workout video (YouTube is full of free ones for all ability levels)
- Turn on your favorite song, and dance. Move your body however it feels good.
- Stretch.
- Pull weeds in the yard or garden.
- Join ISR’s yoga group every Thursday. (Visit www.senior-resources.org/calendar to join).
- If you feel ready, try brisk walking, biking, or swimming.
- Be intentional about making active choices in your day. Take the stairs instead of elevator or park a little further away at the grocery store.
- Try something new. Take up biking, dancing, martial arts, gardening, or playing catch. Try things until you find something you love.

Cut out this daily activity tracker and use it to help make movement a habit.

Challenging Our Resilience and Finding Hope
By Charles LaFond, Executive Director, Island Senior Resources

“They say beauty comes from a spirit that has weathered many hardships in life and somehow continues with resilience. Grace can be found in a soul that ages softly, even amid the tempest. I think the lowest point for me is when the gentle heart bears a hundred scars from caring, yet still finds its way to pick up the lamp, one more time, to light the way for love.” — Susan Frybort

In these dark, wet, winter days, we are asked to be resilient, to find hope amid the darkness. As 2020 passed, I found cause to look for hope and find paths to resilience. My search brought me to the Susan Frybort poem above. Each of us has experienced hardships, offered grace, and cared deeply. I find her poem a beacon amid the storm of life in early 2021, prompting me to find hope.

THE PATHWAY TO EMPATHY

By Charles LaFond, author, educator, UW staff member

Some say this is a time for sympathy as people around us suffer in various ways. Others say this is a time for compassion as people around us suffer in various ways. And both are correct. However, I think the word toward which we must attempt to strive is “empathy.”

And the reason is simple. It comes first. Empathy must precede both sympathy and compassion the way the bubbling yeast must precede bread dough’s rising and then baking.

Before 2019, we all felt able to manage our own feelings as if there were our feelings to manage. But now, in February 2021, for the first time since the world wars, we live in a planetary reality of “we” and not of “they.” Old and young, rich and poor, every race, color, creed, and orientation, we are an entire population of people going through COVID together.

It used to be that we had sympathy for “others” in a challenging situation, taking part in their situation by feeling sorry for them. And then some of the most generous among us were compassionate to others by giving to others in a challenging situation, taking part in their situation by feeling with them, remotely.

What COVID has begun to teach us is that first, we must place ourselves in the shoes of others and try to understand their feelings as if there were our feelings. This takes a lot of internal effort. An international pandemic can do that — force us all into one planetary awareness of suffering — invite us into higher emotional intelligence.

My hope is that we are no longer feeling for others and that we are no longer donating to others, but that we are finally feeling with others — as a species and no longer as groups. Because it is then, and only then, that real generosity will emerge from our gratitude for simply being alive and with a planet of 7.8 billion other Homo sapiens sapiens. This name (Homo sapiens sapiens) is what scientists call humans. It is a subset of “Homo sapiens,” which we often call the caveman or cavewoman. The word “Homo sapiens sapiens” means “human wise and extra wise.”

As I watch the nightly news, I am not yet convinced that we are so very wise a species. But as a fundraiser, watching people donate to help people, I am more and more optimistic.

Every Thursday is Treasure Hunt Thursday: one item your choice, 15% off Every Friday: books 25% off

Now there will finally be a place for all those items you cleaned out of your closets during quarantine! Donations will be accepted Sundays only 9-11 a.m. or until capacity is reached. 360-321-1600 • 360-678-3373

Health precautions will be in place, masks will be required, customer flow will be limited, restrooms and dressing rooms will be closed, the store will be sanitized throughout each day, and donated items will be quarantined for 3 days prior to reaching the sales floor.

Please consider donating a $1 or more with your purchase to help support our programs.
Sleep is potentially the most impactful building block of wellbeing. When sleep is disrupted, all of our other systems suffer. Poor sleep is linked to difficulty concentrating, memory issues, mood changes, clumsiness, compromised immunity, increased risk of heart disease, weight gain, and more. Sleep disruption can be a couple of disrupted nights or regular ineffective sleep.

Our first step should be with our doctor for evaluation of underlying conditions. The next step is sleep hygiene. On paper, it's easy to work on better sleep, but it's a commitment to overall wellbeing.

First, make a schedule and stick to it. Go to bed at the same time every day. Wake up at the same time every day. Schedule 7-9 hours of sleep every night.

The steps you take throughout the day will impact your sleep. Physical activity during the day is associated with better sleep at night. Avoid naps. Don't eat a heavy meal close to bedtime.

Next, avoid substances that disrupt sleep. Caffeine has a half-life of 4-5 hours, so that cup of coffee in the afternoon can still impact sleep. Try to cut out caffeine six hours before bedtime, but a noon cutoff is better. Alcohol can increase drowsiness but interferes with REM. Moderate use of alcohol (one serving per day for men) has been connected to 24% reduction in sleep quality.

Develop a calming bedtime routine: take a warm shower; brush your teeth; keep lighting dim, shut off technology at least an hour before bedtime and leave it out of the bedroom if possible. If you need to keep phones nearby, set them to quiet or night mode so that dings and vibrations don't disrupt your sleep. Some calming stretches and slow calming breaths can help too.

Set the room for sleep. Cooler temperatures are associated with better sleep (65 degrees). Lower light before bed helps to cue your body to sleep. Eliminate light during sleep by turning off any devices and using light-blocking curtains. Earplugs can help to muffle noise disruptions.

If we've tried the above and we need more help? Start with a sleep diary and look for patterns in successful and disrupted sleep. There are also some great techniques that can help. A regular mindfulness practice of as little as 10 minutes a day has been tied to so many benefits, including improved sleep and stress reduction. If you could benefit from help in developing a mindfulness practice, there are many options, and many of them are free. Smiling mind, a website and app, has many guided mindfulness activities. Calm is another option with specific sleep goals for about $6 per month. Insight Timer is a free app that offers guided meditations to support sleep among selections like yoga nidra, calming music, and more. Are you a skeptic? Check out 10 percent happier, an app, podcast, and book, by Dan Harris of ABC news. He struggled with his belief in this practice, but found it helpful in his recovery from PTSD. Perhaps the most comprehensive option is the Veteran's Affairs App, CBT-i. This app is free to anyone and utilizes cognitive behavioral therapy principles to support improved sleep.

If you find yourself unable to fall or stay asleep due to the inability to stop worrying, there are some great podcasts for exactly that need. Sleep with me; Sleep Whispers; Deep Energy and Dark Ambient; Nothing Much Happens; and Slow Radio are a few that can be a blank and quieting slate for your nighttime rumination. It's worth our effort to get our best sleep.

The steps you take throughout the day will impact your sleep.

The ramp especially made this possible—"They wouldn't have let me come home otherwise," she said. Since she has been home, her best friend has helped her organize mail and medications. She even met a new neighbor whom she previously knew only through her dogs, who helped while she was away and has since become a good friend. Dorothy has a list of friends she can call if she needs anybody, but she is proud to say that she has not had to use it.

"I'm determined. I'm very determined to do things," she said.

Challenges like finding where people put things when they rearranged or mail being delivered after dark might frustrate others, but Dorothy laughs them off, seeing them as opportunities to push herself and find creative solutions.

When asked how she is able to stay so positive, she barely hesitates before sharing, "I've been on my own—I left home when I was 15, and through my life I've decided that if anything bad happens, you have to look for the good."

"And look at the good I've found! All these people that have helped me and done things for me. It brings tears to my eyes. And that's the good I've found!"

Dorothy was happy she was still able to knit hats for a classroom full of students and decorate her home (inside and out!) for Christmas, things she does every year. "People tell me I'm doing good, but then they add 'for your age,'" she laughs as she says this. "It doesn't seem real. I'm 87 now. I don't know how you're supposed to feel when you're 87, but I don't feel as if I'm 87!"

Dorothy continued, saying when her physical therapist asked what she wants to be able to do when she's better, she told them that she wanted to be able to get on her roof and clean her gutters out. She jokes that she nearly gave them a heart attack. She laughs, putting it simply, "I've always done it, and I still will."

Dorothy asked me to write this article so that she could thank her friends, neighbors, and community for everything they've done for her, but now that it's written, I also need to thank Dorothy.

She reminded me of something we could all use reminder of these days—you have to look for the good. You have to look for the good, because even in the midst of pain and difficulties, there's so much good to be found.
